HEAT TREATED CHEMI-BOND PROCESS

Torture tests show that the "Heat Treated—Chemi-Bond" process gives Armstrong tires greater mileage . . . longer carcass life . . . greater recappability . . . and lower cost per mile service. The Armstrong "Heat Treated—Chemi-Bond" process spells the difference between ordinary tires and top quality Armstrong Tires. By this special process, developed by Armstrong engineers and chemists, the rayon cords are tension-dipped in a chemical solution to give the fabric amazing resistance to destructive heat and complete protection against friction and chafing. This solution, through a chemical reaction, creates a surface which is easily bonded into rubber. This bond is strengthened further by the chemical action taking place during the curing of the tire. The Armstrong "Heat Treated—Chemi-Bond" process combines cord and rubber into one rugged, inseparable body . . . multiplies resistance to fatigue and heat . . . makes separation next to impossible. In addition, this process prevents tire growth . . . resists cracking . . . increases fabric flexibility and assures uniform strength throughout the tire.
